TRAINMEN'S DANCE

THANKSGIVING EVE

Thirtieth Annual Ball of Rock River Lodge, B. of R. T., is Next Wednesday Night.

Committee members in charge of arrangements for the annual dancing party of Rock River Lodge, No. 210, today announced everything in readiness for the occasion of the Wednesday evening. This is the thirtieth annual ball of the railroad men and spending the evening has been extended to make the event the big dancing party of the year. Over a long period, the trainmen have been giving their annual parties on Thanksgiving eve and the event has now grown to be one always looked forward to by the city and vicinity.

Hatch's orchestra has been engaged to furnish the inspiration. A program of two steps and waltzes, interspersed with a sufficient number of the newer dances, to permit young and old to enjoy the evening has been arranged. The arrangements are composed of J. Dulin, Dan P. Davey, and W. R. Picher. Joseph S. Dempsey, L. V. Michael, Charles Gregory and J. J. Dulin, Jr., have been delegated as the reception committee. Thomas Murphy is chief of the floor managers and will be assisted by Fred Wagon, George Barry, L. D. Horn, James McGuire, M. F. Carroll, M. F. Dulin, John G. Joerg and Harry M. Howard.

LAKOTA CLUB HOLDS SPECIAL MEET TONIGHT

President Gardner Kalvelage of the Lakota club announces a call for a special meeting of the organization at this evening at 8 o'clock sharp. At this time the club will take action on the matter of music for their annual dancing party which will be held on the Monday following Christmas this year. All members are urged to be present tonight.

Basket Ball Tryouts: Members of the "Y" wishing to try out for the first team in basketball should report in the gymnasium tonight. Physical Director C. E. Leuk has arranged for several out-of-town games and a regular schedule will be made out.

MANY INJURED BY STANDS' COLLAPSE

JANESVILLE PEOPLE IN SECTION ACCIDENT HAPPENED IN HAVE NARROW ESCAPES.

MISS ELLIOT INJURED

Miss Marie Royce of High School Faculty Among Those Injured—Many Ankles Sprained and Others Bruised.

With the exception of Miss M. Royce, teacher of domestic science at the high school, none of the Janesville residents who were on the grand stand at the Wisconsin annual football game at Madison Saturday when it fell, received more than minor injuries, although all had wonderful escapes when the accident occurred.

Miss Layman, a teacher in the industrial school, was among those hurt, and suffered from the shock and badly writhed ankle, but returned to her class work this morning. Miss Royce is at her home in Port Atkinson, where she went Sunday after recovering from the shock, and is suffering from bruises to her limbs and will not return to her classes until next week, there being but three days of school this week. Telephone messages this morning from Port Atkinson reassured her friends her injuries are but trivial.

Miss Beth Bailey and Miss Grace Mathews, also of the Janesville school faculty, were on the stand that fell, but escaped unhurt. Henry Carpenter and H. S. Loyley were among those who went down, and except for bruises and torn clothing escaped. A Miss Carrie Smith of Janesville is also on the list of those reported injured, but her injuries are not so serious as those of her friends.

The following is the list of those injured as it appeared in the Madison Democrat Sunday morning, and while there were probably several hundred others who received bruises, strains or sprained ankles, these are apparently the worst injured:

- Bailey, Mrs. F. E., Decorah, Ia., severe bruises.
- Cunningham, Miss Dorothy, 516 West Doty street, Madison, Park Hotel telephone operator, shoulder dislocated and bruised.
- Duff, Mrs. N. R., Decorah, Ia., severe bruises.
- Duwe, Miss Verna, Middleton, heel bruised.
- Gather, Miss Bernice, Milwaukee, sprains and bruises.
- Gilbert, Mrs. Frank L., 206 Monona avenue, Madison, wife of Attorney General Gilbert, arch of foot bruised and apparently crushed.
- Glover, William H., Watertown, junior student at university, concussion of spine.
- Leland, Mrs., Milwaukee, sprains and bruises.
- McDon, Miss Margaret, Milwaukee, bruises.
- O'Connor, William, Milwaukee, fractured ankle.
- Rhodes, J. H., Chicago, sprained ankle.
- Roberts, Royal A., Racine, sprained ankle.
- Royce, Miss M., Janesville, sprains and bruises.
- Schultz, Mrs. Helen, Watertown, bruises.
- Smith, Miss Carrie, Janesville, wrenched ankle.
- Tanner, V. R., Milwaukee, simple fracture of collarbone.
- Thomas, Mrs., Milwaukee, broken ankle.
- White, F. S., Chicago, of class of 1911, association of Chicago Alumni, sprained back and bruises.
- Young, Miss Mamie, 151 East Gilman street, Madison, sister of Edward J. J. Young, of timber and lumber dealer, several bruises.
- Robert Boyd, 235 South Jackson street, this city, received a badly bruised leg when he fell from the top row of the bleachers a distance of about thirty feet. He was able to leave Madison on the evening train and will be confined to his home for several days.
- On the instant I fell from the row of seats. In an instant I felt the bleachers sag under me and in a second, without warning, we were going down. I was over so quickly that it was impossible to think," said Mr. Boyd last evening.
- William Cronin, James Stewart, Lloyd Craig, Ralph Newton, Joseph Hayes, John Brown, of this city, were in the section that went down, but managed to escape being caught in the crashing timber and huddle of people.

CLASS FOOTBALL AT H. S. BEGINS TODAY

Freshman and Sophomore Class Teams Clash This Afternoon—Juniors and Seniors Play Tomorrow.

Now that the first team schedule in football at the Janesville high school has been completed all interest will turn to the class contests which will be played in the next three days. It has been the custom in years past for these games to be played and the winning class to receive a silver cup presented to the school by Rev. Dennis.

Tonight the freshman and sophomore teams clashed and tomorrow the juniors and seniors will play. The winners of these two contests will play for the championship of the school Wednesday night after school at four o'clock. Great interest is being taken in these games and as the dope stands now the junior team looks as though they might receive the cup.

No first team players will be allowed to play in these games or anyone who has played on the first team for a period that would count up minutes. All these games will begin promptly at four o'clock and will be played at the fair grounds.

ASSISTANT COACH OF GOPHERS VISITS HOME IN JANESVILLE

TWO CHIMNEY FIRES DO VERY LITTLE DAMAGE

Sunday night about nine o'clock the fire department had calls to respond to two chimney fires. The first blaze was at the residence of Mrs. Elizabeth Dawkins, 15 South Cherry street. The fire broke out at the home of Edward Brown, 126 Kingdon street. Little damage was caused in either fire.

HOG MARKET SLOW AT OPENING TODAY

Prices Are Five Cents Under Saturday's Close—Cattle Trade Sluggish.

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.)

Chicago, Nov. 22.—There was a poor demand for hogs this morning with receipts at 47,000 and prices five cents below Saturday's closing. Bulk of native hogs were $5.75 to $6.50. Cattle trade was weak with steers selling at $6.75 to $10.20. Sheep were in fair demand. Market summary follows:

BAD RUNAWAY MIX-UP ON WESTERN AVENUE

Farmer's Team Collides With Rig Owned By F. W. Bencke and Frightens Colt.

Two runaways on Western avenue shortly before noon today furnished considerable excitement and Mrs. Krentsland of Colorado Springs, Colo., a niece of Mr. and Mrs. F. W. Bencke, had a narrow escape from being hurt. While Mr. Bencke was transacting business in the Roasting store Mrs. Krentsland sat in the buggy at the curb. A farmer's team driven at a reckless pace brushed the Bencke rig and the horse, a high spirited colt, took fright and started to run. Mrs. Krentsland was thrown out when he turned sharply around. The racing colt started the horse attached to the National Electric company's delivery wagon, standing in front of the Bencke grocery, and he went galloping down the street, scattering crackers and cookies in all directions. Bencke's colt was caught at the corner of Cherry street and Washington avenue and the biscuit company's horse was stopped at the Gund brewery warehouse.

TWO JANESVILLE HUNTERS HAVE RETURNED WITH GAME

George W. Yahn and F. B. Granger have returned from the northern Wisconsin woods, each bringing a buck deer weighing 200 pounds or better. Of the five members of Yahn's party, he was the only one who succeeded in killing game. There were nine in Mr. Granger's party and only three of them were successful. Deer hunting conditions are reported to have been far from favorable owing to the continued autumn drought.

WHY THE BEST OF CHEWS IS "SPEAR HEAD"

Its Rich, Sweet, Mellow Flavor Has Been Famous for a Generation

MADE OF CHOICEST RED BURLEY

The secret of tobacco satisfaction is known only to the man who chews plug tobacco. The reason is that a good chew gets right next to your taste, while the leaf in plug tobacco is in a state of fresh, juicy richness that is not possible in any other form of tobacco.

There's no tobacco in the world that can give you the hearty, wholesome flavor that you get from a delicious chew of Spear Head.

Spear Head is made exclusively of ripe, red Kentucky Burley—the most richly-flavored chewing tobacco that grows. Still more, only the very choicest red Burley leaf is used for Spear Head.

This choice leaf is selected with the most painstaking care, is stemmed by hand, is thoroughly washed free of all foreign matter, and is pressed into a Spear Head plug so slowly that not a drop of juice or an atom of the natural flavor escapes.

Try Spear Head and you'll get a sweet, mellow, luscious, satisfying chew that cannot be obtained in any other tobacco. Buy a 5c or 10c cut to-day.

PARTY ALIGNMENTS.

It is not going to be any too easy a thing for the Wilson administration to crowd through legislation at the next session of congress as it has in the past. The sixty-fourth congress will tell a bit different tale as to party alignment than did the sixty-third. When there was a bit of defection here and there during the last session the safe margin of a hundred and fifty votes made any victory certain. The failure of a score or more, or even fifty democrats to follow the president's ideas out as to legislation was but a mere trifling. Now it is different. Taking everything into consideration the democratic working majority in the House when congress assemblies next will be but twenty-five. The line-up by parties of the next congress is: Democrats, 230; republicans, 198; progressives, 7; independent, 1; socialists, 1.

The Christian Science Monitor sums up the situation by saying that in the recent election to fill vacancies, the republicans, by defeating a sitting democrat seeking re-election in New York state, made a gain of one. This is considered in the foregoing figures. The democrats, of course, may count on a plurality of thirty-four over their principal opponents. The progressives will vote with them, or when they can count on support from all the progressives, the independent and the socialist. But it is not safe to depend on uncertainties. It is as likely to be the case that all the others will combine against the administration forces. As a rule, and especially on questions of party policy, the administration, in the coming session, must look inside and not outside for help.

As a matter of fact, the important consideration just now is whether or not it can depend upon its apparent margin of twenty-five in times of emergency. The public is already familiar with the fact that Representative Claude Kitchin of North Carolina, who has in the House a personal following of sufficient influence to assure him, up to this writing, at least, election as majority leader, is opposed to the administration defense program and to the administration shipping policy. In the very nature of the case, Representative Kitchin in revolt would not stand alone. He is among the most popular men of his party now in office. How many votes he might draw from the administration on a fair and square issue—such as, for instance, as revenues, defense, shipping or Philippine autonomy—it would be impossible to say at this time, but he would be quite certain to draw more than the administration could afford to lose.

Word comes also that Representative John J. Fitzgerald, chairman of the appropriation committee in the last congress, is not in agreement with the administration on the shipping bill. This is a more important matter than appears on its face, since Mr. Fitzgerald is an influential figure in that element in the national house of representatives which practically holds within its grasp the balance of power. Tammany is in a position to make a change of forty votes on any roll call, and it is of a disposition to make such changes as often as opportunity may arise, if the administration should persist in ignoring its claims to recognition. In the last congress President Wilson could easily disregard the Tammany group; a margin of 150 votes or so on the democratic side rendered him independent of the New York and Brooklyn contingent; he cannot, with respect to the welfare of his measures, refuse to treat with the Tammanyites now, unless he can win over to those measures republicans enough to counterbalance the defection.

There appears to be little reason for the assumption either that the democrats in congress will follow wherever President Wilson chooses to lead, or that the republicans in congress will oppose administration legislation purely on partisan grounds. What seems to be probable is that there will be more independent voting in the next than in any other congress of recent years. The Wilson program as a whole does not appeal to all democrats. Take it on the point of national defense, for instance; it is to be imagined that Mr. Bryan is to be without support in the House? It was Mr. Bryan's advocacy, leadership, generalship, and Mr. Bryan's following in the Baltimore convention that gave Mr. Wilson the nomination. The Nebraska commoner cannot have lost all of his influence of late; he certainly will be able to count on some friends to champion his pacifist ideas and to vote against preparedness when the roll is called in the house. Division in the democratic ranks on other important questions, as already intimated, is certain. Everything that is said, and every conclusion that may be drawn here regarding the House, applies practically to the senate, in which also the democratic margin is perilously small. No party whip, we believe, can carry through or defeat the administration measures. What might be properly called, in the present case at all events, the independent-partisan vote is the most important factor in the situation.

GREAT PREPARATION.

It is understood that Governor Philipp does not fail to realize the great responsibility that has been placed upon his broad shoulders by the voters of the state and is preparing to meet the difficulty that will soon be encountered when the campaign of misrepresentation of state affairs and state business is officially started by the ultra progressive wing headed by Senator La Follette and a few disgruntled newspapers. That Senator La Follette is preparing an address to the people of Wisconsin in which he intends to make a vigorous attack upon the present administration and its economy program is known to many. His personal agents have been making their survey, which will be colored to suit the senator's needs, of the various departments of state and with this as a basis and his generalities to suit the occasion, promises to be some fireworks display before long. It is probable the first address will not be made until after Christmas but meanwhile there are frequent conferences of the ultra progressives to formulate plans. It is to be expected that Senator La Follette will also have something to say about former Senator Stephenson's recent statements as to the amount of money expended by him or indirectly for his personal campaigns, but this will be but a side issue in the general theme of discussion and will probably be a general denial of the statements made by the Marinette man. Knowing this in advance it will not be hard to contradict the story before it is published by giving food for thought by stating exact figures by the administration to show how they have effected a direct saving by installing business methods into what had been a chaos under the ultra progressive administrations that preceded it.

THE STOCK BREEDING INTERESTS.

During the month of November, twenty-six conventions are being held at the Panama-Pacific exposition, of associations of stock breeders, poultry-raisers, etc. The stock breeders' meetings are mostly of sheep and swine growers. The number and strength of these associations is a revelation of the growing interest in all kinds of stock raising.

Formerly a pig was a pig and a sheep a sheep. The majority of farmers thought little as to the breeds to which they belonged. Several different breeds were usually to be found in the same pens. The mongrel products lacked the distinctive merits of any of stock and brought correspondingly low prices.

Today large and small associations of breeders are forming all over the country. They plan advertising campaigns, by which the distinctive product of some breed or of some section or locality become better known. They have competitions by which standards of production are fixed. The individual grower can thus determine if his animals are producing favorable results. They teach the farmer that blood tells in sheep and swine and poultry, as well as in folks, and that mongrels are costly boarders. All which increases efficiency in animal husbandry, will increase production in these lines.

The Test.
"Answer the following questions," said the civil service examiner, sharply. "First, who was the inventor of the first fly swatter and when?"
"Artemus Givensby, April 2, 1765," replied the applicant readily.
"Correct. Second, if it takes 456 cherries to make a 2 by 6 cherry pie, how many cherries, if it takes 456 cherries to make a 2 by 6 cherry pie, how many cherries would the pie contain?"
"Eleven and a fragment," replied the applicant.
"Right. Third, what city in Europe contains the greatest number of one-eyed pithe dogs?"
"Cracow," replied the applicant.
"True. Fourth, is wistaria rash a curable disease?"
"In temperate climates," replied the applicant.
"Exactly. Fifth and last, what river overflows its banks every fifteen minutes?"
"The Eudumpus," replied the applicant.
"The perfect answer!" cried the examiner. "Young man, I find you are eminently suited for the position for which you apply."

HOTEL OF TAVERN STYLE IS OPENED

Several Janesville People Attended Formal Opening of New Fort Atkinson Building Saturday.

A small delegation of residents of Janesville attended the formal opening of the new Black Hawk Hotel at Fort Atkinson Saturday evening. The building was designed by John G. Shodor, formerly of Milwaukee, and the contract for the building was let to Daniel B. Danielson of Milwaukee.

The old hotel, called Hotel Fort, which is replaced by the new building, stands adjoining it on the corner of Main street and Milwaukee avenue. It is one of the landmarks of the city and state, having been built in 1833 by Milo Jones, pioneer settler of Fort Atkinson and member of the territorial legislature. The old hotel was christened the Green Mountain house and was run under that name for many years. The name was afterward changed to the Higbee house, after one of its proprietors, but it has borne the name of Hotel Fort several years. It will be used in the future as an annex to the new hotel and also for office purposes.

The formal opening of the Black Hawk tavern consisted of a six o'clock banquet, for which covers for one hundred guests were laid. Lawrence C. Whitell of Edgerton, former speaker of the assembly, was guest of honor.

Adaptability of the Chinese wood-oil tree for cultivation in northern Florida seems to have been proved by recent experiments. A tree at Tallahassee, Fla., bore two bushels of fruit last season. In addition to being an economically important tree, it is a decidedly ornamental one. It bears clusters of white flowers with reddish-yellow centers, and in full bloom resembles a catalpa.

DRINK MORE WATER IF KIDNEYS BOTHER

Eat Less Meat and Take Salts for Backache or Bladder Trouble—Neutralizes Acids.

Uric acid in meat excites the kidneys, they become overworked; get sluggish, ache, and feel like lumps of lead. The urine becomes cloudy; the bladder is irritated, and you may be obliged to seek relief two or three times during the night. When the kidneys clog you must help them flush off the body's urinous waste or you'll be a real sick person shortly. At first you feel a dull misery in the kidney region, you suffer from backache, sick headache, dizziness, stomach gets sour, tongue coated and you feel rheumatic twinges when the weather is bad.

Eat less meat, drink lots of water; also get from any pharmacist four ounces of Jad Salts; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salt is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to clean clogged kidneys and stimulate them to normal activity, also to neutralize the acids in urine, so it no longer is a source of irritation, thus ending bladder weakness.

Jad Salts is inexpensive, cannot injure; makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink which everyone should take now and then to keep the kidneys clean and active. Druggists here say they sell lots of Jad Salts to folks who believe in overcoming kidney trouble while it is only trouble.

FALLS OFF MOVING CAR AT CROSSING; TEAMSTER INJURED

Ole Olson Received Minor Injuries at Spring Brook—Albert Carlson Struck by Automobile.

Ole Olson, a farm hand working near Leyden, age about fifty years, fell from the interurban car near the Janesville Traction company's barn in Spring Brook, at noon today, receiving a few bruises and lacerations. Olson was standing on the rear platform, failing to observe the rules against this habit, when the car gave a sudden jolt in turning on the frog at the crossing, throwing him out.

Olson fell to the pavement and it was at first feared he had received severe injuries as he was bleeding at the nose and mouth. The ambulance was called and a physician. The police went to Spring Brook with the patrol. After the attending physician found that Olson was not injured beyond a few bruises, the man was taken to the police station and lodged in jail, booked on the police docket as being intoxicated.

Albert Carlson, a teamster employed by F. M. Britt, received cuts and wounds when a small touring car owned by John Lindy of Afton crashed into a coal wagon driven by Carlson, on crossing, Saturday evening between five and six o'clock. Carlson was driving a team of horses attached to the empty coal wagon, from the State School for the Blind, when the car came over the rise to the railroad tracks. The automobile ran into the team, striking them with great force. In the mix-up the team kicked loose, rearing, running to the Roeling grocery store, where the horses were stopped. Both horses received cuts, one more severely than the other. Carlson was taken to a hotel and given medical attention. The automobile was disabled by the collision.

DRAW A JURY TODAY IN CUNNINGHAM CASE

BEGIN TRIAL OF ACTION AGAINST JANESVILLE POSTMASTER AND JOHN E. NOLAN.

TRYING DAMAGE SUIT

Second Jury Will Consider Testimony in Case of A. W. Layng Against John E. Lane.

A jury was drawn this afternoon in the circuit court to try the case of John E. Cunningham against J. J. Cunningham and John E. Nolan, an action to recover damages for money alleged to have been secured by the defendant through threats. Jeffries, Mout, and Avery have the plaintiff's side of the case, while Cunningham is conducting his own side of the case with the assistance of George G. Sullivan, the attorney for Mr. Nolan.

The suit promises to be one of the most hotly contested of the present circuit court calendar and will probably consume several days. The complaint alleges that the transaction in which the plaintiff paid over some $900 to the defendant, occurred in the postmaster's office in a federal building, and alleges further that the rig of a rural mail carrier and use in the completion of the deal. The threatening part of the deal, the complaint alleges, was that the plaintiff's husband would be sent to state's prison on a certain fund was paid over to Nolan to compensate him for the alleged embezzlements of Abraham.

Mr. Cunningham's answer to the complaint is a stinging document containing numerous charges, among them one attacking the present lawyer as responsible for the case being brought out of spite and malice.

Judge Turner of Milwaukee, who was called in to preside, arrived this afternoon and assigned the bench in the court room as soon as the jury was drawn. The remainder of the jury and Judge Grimm then withdrew and the case was called on for trial. A. W. Layng of Rockford against J. E. Lane of this city, an action for damages to an automobile which it was alleged was damaged in a collision with a car driven by Mr. Lane, just south of the city of Beloit. E. H. Ryan is the plaintiff's attorney, and Thomas S. Nolan for the defendant.

TWO YOUTHS BEFORE COURT FOR ROBBERY

Edward Goodman Charged With Stealing Auto Tire and John Heslison With Receiving Stolen Property.

Police this morning served warrants for the legal arrest of Edward Goodman and John Heslison, both about 22 years of age, for the robbery committed at the barn of John McKeon last week, and a six months sentence was pronounced. Goodman was charged with stealing the automobile tire, the value of which was being fifteen dollars, and Heslison was charged with receiving and concealing the stolen property, receiving the same penalty. Goodman has been in jail since Saturday and was first arraigned. He pleaded guilty to the complaint, stating that he was intoxicated at the time of the offense and that his condition was responsible for the theft. The maximum term of six months in the county jail. Goodman then filed an application to be placed under the state board of control, so as to avoid the state board of control, but was placed on parole, which the court allowed. Under the parole the state agents can confine Goodman to the state's prison in case of a violation of his probation. Goodman was also instructed to take the pledge for one year's time.

Heslison was arrested Friday, but was released Saturday, when he turned over the goods to the police. He was charged with receiving the tire, guard and gloves stolen from the auto, but declared that at the time he received the property, he did not know then by whom it was stolen. However, he admitted that he learned of the true facts within a short time and did not make an attempt to return the property. The court pronounced the same penalty of six months in the county jail. Judge Maxfield took the matter under advisement and may take steps to suspend the sentence.

John Whaley, the young man who received a commitment to the state's prison for trouble at a residence, was arrested Saturday night for trying to "clean out" the Brook saloon. He started in his back yard, but landed in jail. He pleaded guilty and was given ten days flat and thirty additional days in default of a twenty-five dollar fine. "Butch" Moesher was bound over for trial on November 30th, after an examination on the charge of second offense drunkenness before the court this morning. His testimony was given by the court. The second offense count was easily proven by a glance at the court records as Moesher's name occupies a frequent and prominent place in the drunk book.

ESCAPING GAS FIRED BY MATCH, EXPLODES

Charles C. Gray and Son Injured Saturday Night Looking for Trouble in Gas Filled Cellar.

A lighted match in a gas-filled cellar proved serious though not fatal Saturday night about 8 o'clock for Charles C. Gray of 162 Locust street and his son, Charles, Jr. The explosion which could be heard for blocks, badly burned the face of the younger man and stunned the visitor when the force threw him against the wall.

In the cellar of the home is an instantaneous gas heater, the flame for which is controlled by a dimmer light. Edgerton News

Edgerton, Nov. 22.—Miss Nellie Bentley was at Columbus yesterday, assisting in a violin and pipe organ concert.

About seventy-five people from Edgerton attended the football game at Madison Saturday.

The traffic poles that have been in use on the corners of the principal streets in the city were taken down Saturday and will not be in use again until spring, as the automobile season is about over for this year. They have answered their purpose very well and undoubtedly have averted many accidents this season.

Mrs. P. C. Brown and daughter, Bernice, called on Janesville friends and relatives Saturday.

Quite a number of Edgerton people are planning on attending the social center festivities at Fulton tomorrow. Mr. and Mrs. Anson Silven attended the funeral of the late J. McCall, which was held at Milton Junction Saturday.

Mrs. W. L. Simmons visited relatives at Whitewater Saturday.

Mrs. Richard Curran spent the week end with Mr. Curran at La Crosse.

Fifteen cars of lambs from Melstone, Montana, arrived at the feed yard Saturday and will stop a few days before being reshipped.

Mr. and Mrs. John Barlow visited with their daughter at Stoughton Saturday.

Dr. Pember of Janesville, was a caller in the city on Saturday last.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles May of Fort Atkinson, were week-end visitors at the home of Mrs. May's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Summerfield.

Miss Jessie North was at Stoughton last evening and spoke before the Methodist church Epworth League at that place and Miss Ruby Watson of Stoughton was in Edgerton and spoke before the Epworth League here. Miss Watson was a guest at the home of Dr. Morrison of Madison, called on Edgerton relatives Sunday.

A chimney burning out at the home of Roy Hopkins, caused the fire department to be called out yesterday afternoon about five o'clock. The fire was extinguished before the company arrived.

The regular meeting of the Edgerton Chapter No. 63, O. E. S., will begin at 7:30, evening, of 8:00 o'clock tomorrow evening, and a short program is planned.

The carp fishers who are at work in the river between the lake and Indian Ford, are not succeeding in making very large catches; however, as the weather has turned colder, it is expected that the fish will school and better catches are looked for. In one haul made above the railroad bridge last week, there were forty black bass and one of the largest ones tipped the scales at a little better than four pounds. However, there is a state game warden who accompanies the fishers all the time and all the game fish are immediately returned to the river.

Mr. and Mrs. August Dallman celebrated their twenty-fifth wedding anniversary yesterday and were married in this city twenty-five years ago and have made Edgerton their home ever since. About thirty relatives and friends assembled at their home in the third ward yesterday and the time was pleasantly spent. Mr. and Mrs. Dallman received many nice pieces of silverware from their guests in remembrance of the occasion.

Hon. L. C. Whittey was an over Sunday visitor in the city.

Frank Brown transacted business at Madison today.

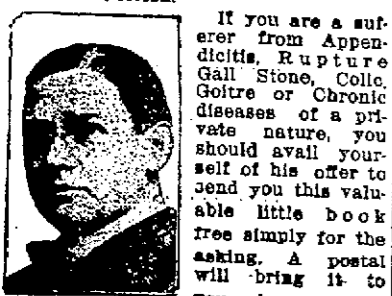

East Fulton street, fell down the cellar stairs yesterday and sustained some painful injuries that needed the attention of a doctor. Considering her advanced age, she is to be considered fortunate that she was not more seriously injured.

Mrs. Lizzie Williams went to Richmond Center this morning in her office.

A Medical Book Free

By Dr. N. A. Goddard

Modern Methods of treating Chronic Diseases without Operation, has just come from the pen of Dr. Goddard the Milwaukee Specialist and is one of the most interesting as well as instructive little books the doctor has ever written.

If you are a sufferer from Appendicitis, Rupture, Gall Stone, Colic, Gout or Chronic diseases of a private nature, you should avail yourself of his offer to send you this valuable little book free simply for the asking. A postal will bring it to you, in a plain wrapper. Many so-called surgical diseases, have been proven to be curable by medical treatment, more safely, more easily and cheaply by modern medical methods than was believed possible a few years ago.

After you have read this little book, you can consult Dr. Goddard on his monthly visits to Janesville, free of charge and have the satisfaction of knowing that you have secured the expert opinion of a reputable specialist in these matters. If you have been advised to submit to an operation, surely do not fail to consult him before undergoing such an operation. His advice may save you many weeks of suffering, loss of time and expense, possibly your life. Dr. Goddard will be at the Grand Hotel, Janesville, Thursday, Dec. 2, and he makes no charges for a friendly visit. Hours 9 a. m. to 4 p. m.

Address DR. GODDARD, 121 Wisconsin St., Milwaukee Wis.

Quite a number of Edgerton people are planning on attending the social center festivities at Fulton tomorrow. Mr. and Mrs. Anson Silven attended the funeral of the late J. McCall, which was held at Milton Junction Saturday.

Mrs. W. L. Simmons visited relatives at Whitewater Saturday.

Mrs. Richard Curran spent the week end with Mr. Curran at La Crosse.

Fifteen cars of lambs from Melstone, Montana, arrived at the feed yard Saturday and will stop a few days before being reshipped.

Mr. and Mrs. John Barlow visited with their daughter at Stoughton Saturday.

Dr. Pember of Janesville, was a caller in the city on Saturday last.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles May of Fort Atkinson, were week-end visitors at the home of Mrs. May's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Summerfield.

Miss Jessie North was at Stoughton last evening and spoke before the Methodist church Epworth League at that place and Miss Ruby Watson of Stoughton was in Edgerton and spoke before the Epworth League here. Miss Watson was a guest at the home of Dr. Morrison of Madison, called on Edgerton relatives Sunday.

A chimney burning out at the home of Roy Hopkins, caused the fire department to be called out yesterday afternoon about five o'clock. The fire was extinguished before the company arrived.

The regular meeting of the Edgerton Chapter No. 63, O. E. S., will begin at 7:30, evening, of 8:00 o'clock tomorrow evening, and a short program is planned.

The carp fishers who are at work in the river between the lake and Indian Ford, are not succeeding in making very large catches; however, as the weather has turned colder, it is expected that the fish will school and better catches are looked for. In one haul made above the railroad bridge last week, there were forty black bass and one of the largest ones tipped the scales at a little better than four pounds. However, there is a state game warden who accompanies the fishers all the time and all the game fish are immediately returned to the river.

Mr. and Mrs. August Dallman celebrated their twenty-fifth wedding anniversary yesterday and were married in this city twenty-five years ago and have made Edgerton their home ever since. About thirty relatives and friends assembled at their home in the third ward yesterday and the time was pleasantly spent. Mr. and Mrs. Dallman received many nice pieces of silverware from their guests in remembrance of the occasion.

Hon. L. C. Whittey was an over Sunday visitor in the city.

AT THE MAJESTIC.

"The White Sister" in Masterpiece in Photographic Art.

Viola Allen has immortalized "The White Sister" in film. This masterpiece of the late F. Marion Crawford, one of the world's foremost authors, is now presented to the public in the greatest photoplay ever produced.

The genius of this famous actress has been the means of bringing out the intense dramatic action, all the delicate touches of pathos, all the lights and shadows of Mr. Crawford's greatest work, with unsurpassed excellence. Essanay has spared no expense in the making of the most elaborate settings to fulfill the multifarious scenic conditions of the play, with the result that "The White Sister" is as perfect a photoplay in every respect as it is possible to construct.

Although this is Miss Allen's first appearance in photoplay, her wide experience on the stage, her great talent, and the fact that she has the reputation of being a perfect photoplay actress, has combined to win her an unparalleled success in her work.

Miss Allen entered into this new field with great enthusiasm. She was a warm personal friend of the author of "The White Sister," and of his family, and it was largely through the interest of the latter in the filming of one of his books that she consented to enact the role in which she made such a signal success on the speaking stage.

She grew more enthusiastic as the work progressed and took an active part in criticizing and reviewing the various scenes, with the result that she has created a masterpiece.

I have been wonderfully interested in the production of this play," she declared. "In fact, it has been a revelation to me. The wonderful technical apparatus of the Essanay studios, the care and watchfulness of all details as well as the skilled work in making the play a thing of life and beauty and action, is a marvel to me.

"There is nothing I wish for more than that this play make a tremendous success, which, not speaking of my own sincere efforts, the work of Essanay assuredly warrants."

Miss Allen showed wonderful adaptability in fitting herself to the different conditions of working on the speaking stage to that in photoplays. She not only grasped all the essentials with quickness and ease, but through her personality has created such an atmosphere that players with whom she had no previous acquaintance were enabled to act with entire ease and with her interpretation of "The White Sister."

Richards C. Travers, who played opposite Miss Allen, was one of the strong factors in making this play such a success.

"The White Sister" opens its run at the Majestic tomorrow afternoon.

AT THE MAJESTIC.

Novel Introduction is Seen in "The White Sister."

One of the most novel introductions to a photoplay ever presented is shown in "The White Sister." Essanay's six-act photoplay. The novel, written by F. Marion Crawford, glides out on the stage, apparently without human agency, from a black box, the title of the book, turns around and opens to the frontispiece, showing a full length picture of Viola Allen, the famous stage star, who leads in the play. Miss Allen is then seen to step right out of the page in diminutive form and increase to natural size, when she makes a bow to the audience, and the play is on. This great feature produced by Fred E. Wright, will be shown at the Majestic for three days, beginning tomorrow.

AT THE APOLLO.

Charlotte Walker Tonight.

When the latest Jesse L. Lasky success, "Out of Darkness," is presented at the Apollo tonight, one of the most sensational and thrilling scenes ever shown on the screen will be seen. In this play, Charlotte Walker, the distinguished dramatic artist, who made such a pronounced success in the recent Lasky production of "Kindling," is the star, and in one scene, she is forced to enter a burning factory and in the center of the flames, blind Thomas Melghan, her leading man, from the chair to which he has been bound. During the photographing of this scene, the thin dress which Miss Walker was wearing caught on fire and it was with great difficulty that the actress was prevented from being badly burned. As it was, she was

AT THE PRINCESS.

Dorothy Phillips in "The Mystery of the Locked Room."

There was a murder committed all right, and some one tried to open a window from the outside. But the window was locked from the inside and so were both doors, yet the man was found dead, clutching a pocket watch, there were signs of a struggle, but no signs of suicide. The locked room was solved, and he was accused, but he solved the mystery and most important of the strongest mystery dramas you have ever seen for a good long time. There's punch plus in this picture and you will miss a good one if you do not see it at the Princess Tuesday.

AT THE APOLLO.

Blanche Sweet on Tuesday.

"The Case of Becky," in which Jesse L. Lasky presents Miss Blanche Sweet in the stellar role, at the Apollo on Tuesday, is one of the greatest dramatic successes ever produced by David Belasco, by whose consent and sanction the picturization was made. Edward Locke is the author.

Miss Sweet's beauty, appearing exclusively in the photodrama productions of the Jesse L. Lasky Feature Play company. Following her recent triumph in success in "The Secret Orchard," she now appears in her most important production. In "The Case of Becky," Miss Sweet assumes a dual personality, that of a young woman attracted by a hypnotist, subject to the influence of two characters, one happy, the other mean and vicious. These two personalities, in the one person, struggle against each other for mastery. Throughout the play is a theme of hypnotism and hypnotism, subject that are handled with all the skill and discretion at the command of the Lasky producing force.

Noted physicians and specialists are attracted by the strange "Case of Becky." In the end, through a combination of science and love's powerful might, the hated personality is conquered. The scenes of the play are modern, the characters, persons of today. With Miss Sweet in the cast is Carlyle Blackwell.

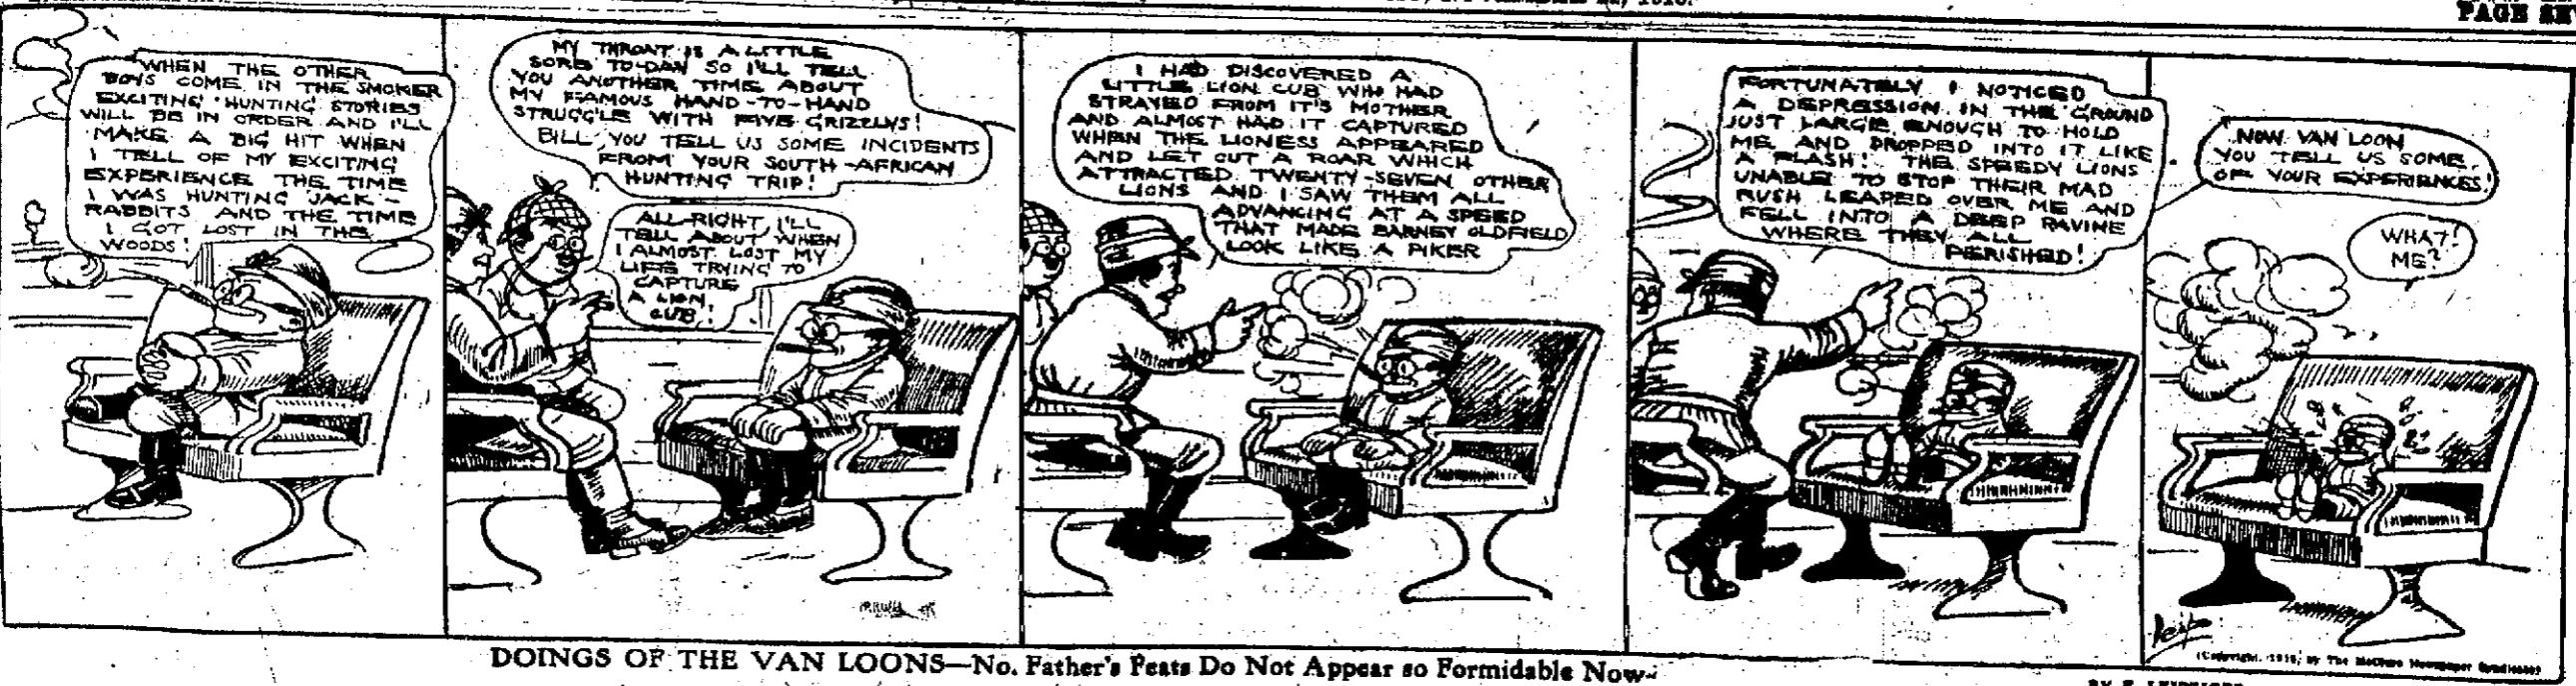

AT THE APOLLO.

Cyril Maude in Ibsen's Masterpiece.

Frequent discussion of the correct pronunciation of "Ase," the name of Peer Gynt's mother in Henrik Ibsen's celebrated drama of the droll Norwegian wanderer, brings out the fact the small circle above the capital A in Norwegian spelling makes the pronunciation "Osi."

"Ase's Death" will be remembered as one of the four numbers in Edward Grib's immortal "Peer Gynt Suite," and the same imaginative genius which the composer worked with the libretto material will be found to have been achieved by the screen producer, granted, as he was at the very outset, certain peculiar scenic advantages which make for an illusion impossible in any other way. The successive love affairs of this Gudbrandsdale boy as he wanders to all parts of the world are so realistically local to every clime in which they occur that one fairly marvels at the sphere that has been caught in each episode.

For the Family Medicine Chest

Green Bay, Wis., Mrs. Wm. F. Bubolz says: "I always use Foley's Honey and Tar for our children as it quickly breaks up their colds with no bad after effects, and they like to take it."

In this season of coughs, colds and croup, every family medicine chest should be supplied with a good cough medicine that can be relied upon when needed.

Such a family cough syrup is Foley's Honey and Tar Compound. This standard medicine has been on the market for years and in many sections was found in every home in the days when doctors were not so handy and when money was scarcer. Foley's Honey and Tar Compound is an excellent medicine for coughs, colds, raw or inflamed throat, hoarseness, tightness and soreness of the chest, croup and whooping cough. It is an absolutely safe remedy, containing only healing ingredients, and free from any harmful drugs.

CHAPTER XXVIII.

Fires Within Fire.

So it was a double burden that the great black horse carried into the mystery of the shrouded country. Hatred was like a wall between them and Poppy's fingers, clinging perforce to Siletz's shirt, twitched with desire. How short a distance to the pocket in the bagging blouse!

So they rode with smarting eyes and aching lungs, down into a dim valley and up again, between fires, under mighty, towering trunks, tottering to their fall. They passed the high spine of the Hog Back, a majestic crown against the forest, and threaded the ruins of the forest. At last they saw great fires ahead and men running among them.

"Where is Sandry?" Siletz asked, unabashed, of a soldier. "Don't know. Haven't seen him for hours." He hurried on and the girl rode along the line where a hundred men were laboring with ax and spade and blanket. The wind had dropped and they were working north and south, trying to bottle up a roaring cross-cut of a valley. Scattered throughout the hills in squads, obeying the orders sent down from time to time by the ranger and his aids, who patrolled the ridges with field glasses, they worked like a great machine, though they saw no farther than their own trench, their own line of back-fire, their own stretch of felled pines.

But work as they would at the base of the high, massed peaks, Destiny was about ready for her grand coup at the fortunes of the Dillingworth, and she snatched a streamer from a cross-canyon and shot it high across line and back-fire and trench into the dry pines on that slope. Also she had sent, an hour before, a tall, lone spiral into the dun heavens from the very heart of the spared timber behind the Hog Back. That spiral had caught the eye of Walter Sandry, working with his waning strength north on the east slope. For how many hours he did not know, he had neither eaten nor slept. But still he went with the spirit that would not quit so long as another stayed at his post.

"If the rains would only come!" he thought as he struggled upward. "It's nearly time for them. If they would only bring their first showers now!" The roar of the new fire—a solitary pine that went up like a huge, graceful torch—was in his ears, its light before him.

"Now how under heaven did it get started up in here?" He had spoken aloud as he wearily skirted a clump of young spruce and the words fell short, abruptly broken as he emerged from their shelter.

Before him, in a small cleared space, stood Hampden of the Yellow Pines. His back was toward Sandry and he carried in his hand three candles. He was nearly as black and disreputable as any scarecrow down among the fires. He was intently watching something at the foot of a second pine. Softly Sandry moved until this object was in his line of vision.

Bathed high in a pile of tinder-dry needles, a fourth candle, glowing brightly in the smoky gloom. With utmost cunning it had been set close against the tree where a long branch of pitch trailed down the rugged bark from far up among the branches. When the candle burned down to the resin-steeped needles—and a man might travel far in the meantime—the upleaping flames need only to lick that banner to rush with lightning speed to the swaying, inflammable top.

For a long moment the Easterner stood, lost in wonder. Then the whole thing burst upon him and he knew. Hampden of the Yellow Pines was the power behind the holocaust!

As this stupendous knowledge forced itself into his weary brain, the other man turned and strode swiftly away among the boles. The wary climb had taken the breath from Sandry's lungs and he drew a pistol from his belt and fired over Hampden's head. Like an animal the man whirled, hand to hip, and faced him.

"I've got you at last!" Sandry panted. "I've got you at last!"

Hampden's heavy lips curled venomously from his short, strong teeth. "You!" he breathed. "You! You damned Easterner! You lily-handed tenderfoot!"

Sandry smiled grimly. "This is just about the blackest spot in your crooked career, Hampden," he said at last, "the blackest and the biggest blunder. I can't see why you did it."

"You can't!" snarled Hampden. "Oh, you can't! Well, by God, you will be. You'll be done with you. You didn't know what you was gettin' up against—you and your—your—Poppy Ordway. You made yer fight, an' you thought you'd win! But you reckoned without me. I'm makin' mine, an' it's a hummer."

He glared savagely along the gun into Sandry's bloodshot eyes, and at this moment Black Bolt heaved up through the ferns, Siletz peering eagerly along his straining neck, and the face of Poppy Ordway at her shoulder. The girl slid out of the saddle and ran to Sandry.

"What is it?" she cried. "what is it?"

Sandry pointed to the burning candle at the pine's foot and instantly she sprang forward and snuffed it out with thumb and finger.

Miss Ordway slipped down from the foamy, steaming hips of the horse, to stand leaning against him, her bright eyes beginning to sparkle with the tension of the moment. At sight of her Hampden's face grew gray beneath its grime. She was smiling with that pleasure which she always found where men fought, or engineered dramatic coups, or worked out clever schemes, and her beauty was never so maddening to him in all his knowledge of her. His one pure dream had, in truth, reached a sorry ending.

"Sandy," said Siletz simply, "I came to you. There's danger somewhere. I don't know where or what—but there's something in the shadows."

A vagrant wind fanned up, long sheets and whistling banners that hurried up to leap into the moaning canopy behind the Hog Back. The actors in this little drama were too intent to hear the heightened note.

"So you come to be in at the death!" said Hampden at last, his eyes on Poppy in anguished fury. "You come to be in at the death of me! Oh, the game's up and I don't care a damn! I'm the smartest one of this bunch yet. An' but for the fact that you've got them two letters you stole from the commissioner and the account book with the records of our deals an' rake-offs and so on, I'd had a chance to fight an' win yet! But I know you, Poppy—Oh, how damned well I know you!—an' I know I'm whipped. But I'm makin' a fight—you're damned right I am!"

He waved an eloquent arm around at the appalled, shrinking country which seemed to crouch in its nakedness under the shrouding smoke.

"But the thing that puts it knowing that you done it all for him! A terrible drivelin' thing from the East! An' they say you'll marry him! Well, go to it! He'll have to move out, fer there won't be any more Dillingworth Lumber company in twenty hours. I'll be behind bars, all right, but I've cleared him out!"

As he finished with a reckless laugh Sandry turned amazed eyes to Poppy. She was pale with anger and she avoided his glance. This was the last thing she wanted—that Sandry should know of her attempt to forestall him in the "getting" of Hampden. She saw her chance to gain his gratitude as any scarecrow down among the fires. He was intently watching something at the foot of a second pine. Softly Sandry moved until this object was in his line of vision.

"Hampden," she said unsteadily, "you're the coarsest beast I know!"

"All right. But ain't that what it's all for? To lay me as a burnt offering at his feet—a sacrifice to win his mincein' love? Didn't you say you'd marry him? Ain't I heard it right an' left?"

"No!" cried Poppy, red with rage under Sandry's astounded eyes. "no! I never did!"

"Yes!" cried Siletz ringingly. "you did! You said when Sandry was dying that you were his promised wife!"

In the hush that followed, intensified by the dropping brands from the huge pine which was now but a blackened, pronged shape in the thickening smoke, there fell upon their ears a sound as incongruous with the strained moment as could be imagined.

It was a shower of notes, high, sparkling, thrilling, that seemed to fall like drops of diamond through the murky canopy. They came up from the west, mysterious, martial, joyful, and their burden was "Lead, Kindly Light, Lead Thou Me On!"

"The Preacher!" whispered Siletz. "Oh, the Preacher!"

And presently through the dim dun- whiteness of the smoke that crept with portent between the crowding places, there merged the familiar, erect form. With one accord they turned to him as he approached and Sandry for the one moment left Hampden unguarded.

It was all that was necessary. Quick as light the hand that had first instinctively sought his hip sought it again. There was a flash of metal, dug in the dun effulgence, a straightening of the heavy arm that held it, a spurt of flame, a shot.

But quick as the timberman had been, another was quicker. With one leap as Hampden reached for his gun the Preacher reached Sandry, snatched him aside and flung himself before him, his flute raised high in protest, in command. But the gesture came too late.

The bullet meant for the Easterner found lodgment in the gentle breast of the wandering player of hymns, and he sank down in Sandry's arms.

CHAPTER XXIX.

The Sign of the Siletz. It was Poppy Ordway who struck the gun from Hampden's hand, sending it flying among the ferns.

"We'll have no murder here!" she cried.

Sandry looked at Hampden for one fleeting second as he laid his gun beside him.

"If you move one muscle," he rasped harshly, "I'll kill you on the spot."

Then he eased the slight form of the Preacher down upon the deep pine needles.

Just above the heart blood was pouring from the shabby habit. Sandry tore it away, to find a clean small hole in the white skin, which was fine and delicate as a woman's. The ball had gone straight through, tearing a huge ragged aperture, where it emerged in the back from which the red stream flowed in a food.

"Cloth!" cried Sandry, "give me cloth!"

His voice broke the spell that bound Siletz and she sprang forward, tearing her garments, ripping out of her breast some mysterious womanly vesture that was white and soft.

"Oh, my God above the sea!" she was crying with gasping sobs, "Lord of the heavens! Spare him! Spare him!" And only Poppy Ordway saw the packet which tumbled unheeded to the ground. With one batlike, graceful movement she threw herself forward, snatched it up and hid it in her own bosom.

Sandry hastily made compresses and bound them upon the wounds. He tore off what was left of his tattered shirt and added it. He took handfuls of leaves from the hazelbrush and padded the compresses, binding them tighter and tighter. But it was heart's blood that was loosened and each effort to stop it was futile.

It was soon evident that the feet in their heavy shoes had gone their last journey upon the hills, that the triumphant flute had piped its last song of victory.

"My children," said the Preacher, "I promised to come when you should need me. I have served a need. You are young, my son, and the path of youth is fair. There are too many primroses thereon to sacrifice one year of it. I am old—old."

Here Siletz flung himself upon her knees beside him, unable to control herself, rocking to and fro after her fashion, her braids swaying and a terrible anguish upon her face.

The handsome blue eyes turned wonderingly upon her.

"Daughter—little one of the tender heart—hush! I hear strange sounds and I would listen."

He closed his eyes and lay for a time in silence, the delicate tracery on his face emerging more clearly as a pallor spread beneath it. It was the divine record of years spent with his God in the high places, though here and there a drooping line bespoke a vague, forgotten sadness.

Presently he murmured: "The Winds of the Mighty One are upon the sounding board of the hills! Ah!"

"I think the strangest thing I saw was the flying-fish."

Forty Years Ago

Janeville Daily Gazette, Nov. 22, 1875.—The weather had a new deal yesterday. Saturday was a very pleasant day, but in the evening a cold wind rose in the west, and at seven o'clock Sunday morning the thermometer stood at zero. Last year the thermometer did not reach zero until the 29th of December, when it ran to seven degrees below zero.

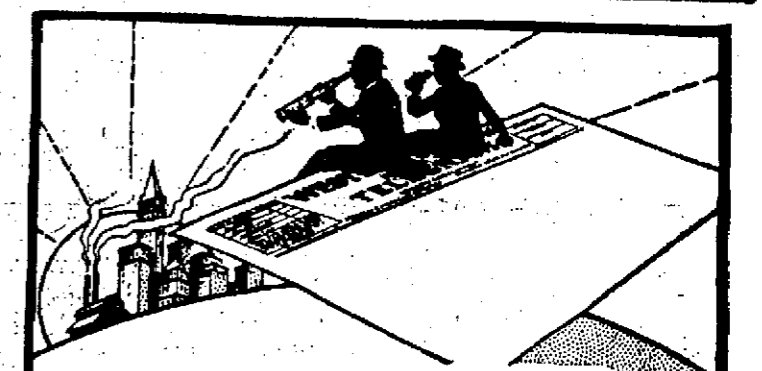

The old character John Connors, who was arrested, tried and convicted recently for the attempt to set a house on fire, was sentenced Saturday to thirty days in the county jail. Judge Conger gave John some wholesome advice, on pronouncing the sentence, to which he very gratefully responded. "Long life to yer honor, sir."

New York, Nov. 22.—A dispatch to this city from Washington says Vice President Wilson is dead. Further reports say that he died this morning at 7:30 o'clock after resting very quietly the night before.

PIMPLY? WELL, DON'T BE!

People Notice It. Drive Them Off With Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets

A pimply face will not embarrass you much longer if you get a package of Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets. The skin should begin to clear after you have taken the tablets a few nights.

Cleanse the blood, the bowels and the liver with Olive Tablets—there's never any sickness or pain after taking them.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets do that high calomel does, and just as effectively, but their action is gentle and safe instead of severe and irritating.

No one who takes Olive Tablets is ever cured with "a dark brown taste," feeling, constipation, torpid liver, bad disposition or pimply face.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets are a purely vegetable compound mixed with olive oil. You will know them by their olive color.

Dr. Edwards' many years among patients afflicted with liver and bowel complaints, and Olive Tablets are the immensely effective result.

Take one or two nightly for a week. See how much better you feel and look. Write for free book, "All Druggists."

The Olive Tablet Company, Columbus, O.

RESINOL BEGINS TO HEAL SICK SKINS AT ONCE

You don't have to WONDER if Resinol Ointment is doing you good. You KNOW it is, because the first application stops the itching and your tortured skin feels cool and comfortable at last.

Why don't YOU try this easy Resinol way to heal eczema or similar skin eruptions? Resinol clears away pimples, too, and is a valuable household remedy for cuts, sores, burns, chafings, etc. It has been prescribed by doctors for 20 years and contains nothing to injure the tenderest skin. Sold by all druggists.

HOW TO KEEP BABY'S SKIN WELL. The regular use of Resinol Soap is usually enough to prevent those distressing rashes and chafings to which most babies are subject. This is so, first, because Resinol Soap is absolutely pure and free from harsh alkali, and second, because it contains the Resinol medication, on which so many physicians rely for skin troubles.

WOMAN'S PAGE

Married Life on $80 a Month

BY MRS. E. A. THOMPSON

"It is because I am so weak," so sure to make mistakes, to lose my temper and say disagreeable things that I dread going home," Molly Sumner sat in her chair, by the window looking over the landscape that seemed somehow to have given her a broader view of life. Perhaps it was because Mrs. Morton sat with her every afternoon after the work was done. She had grown to look forward to these quiet talks that gave her something to think about all the other hours of the day.

"Not to understand the truth is to be in danger. You realize your own weakness. How can I provide against it?" replied the old lady, laying down her sewing to look at her guest. "How can I provide against it? I do not understand," Molly leaned her head wearily against the cushion. "By building around your weakness just as strong defenses as possible. All real battles are fought in the mind. You must make yourself realize that fear of yourself, fear of failure are thoughts that must be driven out. Fear is a poison of the mind. Suspicion is a fear of our friends and acquaintances will not be of themselves. Temper is a kind of panic of the soul that sweeps out all self-control." The old lady paused and absently gazed out the window.

"I cannot imagine your being afraid of anything, dear Mrs. Morton," said Molly, reaching out and lightly touching her hand.

"Anybody can banish fear who really finds and realizes his best self," Molly listened eagerly, for she did not understand what the old lady meant and she was sure it was something she needed to know.

"I am a deeply religious woman," she began in a sort of embarrassment, "I do not say much about it, but I feel very much about it and tell you a little about it for you need help."

"Please go on," said Molly in a low voice, for the firm old voice had stopped.

"When our souls are anchored, we can stand up and face the future, sure that we shall be equal to anything that it can bring to us." Her voice died away and a silence fell between them as the early twilight crept into the room.

"How can I discover this—anchor-ages," said Molly in a low voice. "The joys and sorrows that come to us must be our teachers. I grow your soul has accepted, has lived with as a household companion, is a great teacher. I know, for I lost a little girl twenty-five years ago. When you learn to live with your soul, a fault you have looked in the face cannot harm you any more, for you will rise above it. You will have to keep friends with yourself, not lose your self-respect. The more you cannot disappoint your friends, those who believe in you and expect great things of you."

PARIS FASHION HINT

Place a little carbonated-vaseline on a piece of cotton batting between the toes; a good remedy and relief.

CHILBLAINS—Soak feet in alum water as hot as can be borne for twenty minutes before bedtime, or use potato water instead of alum, or use a good cider vinegar. Any one is good.

WARTS—Oil of cinnamon dropped on warts three or four times a day will cause them to disappear, however hard, large or dense they may be. The application causes no pain and no suppuration.

THE TABLE.

Creamed Oysters—Allow four to six small oysters to each person. Drain off liquor and wash. Put in shallow pan over low fire and flump. Make a cream sauce in proportion of two tablespoons butter, one tablespoon flour, three-fourths cup milk, dash of paprika and salt to taste. Add hot liquor from oysters, then add oysters. Serve at once in party shells.

Date Bars—One cupful sugar, two eggs, one cupful English walnuts, one cupful raisins, one cupful dates, one cupful flour, one teaspoonful baking powder and pinch of salt. Beat eggs, combine with sugar, and stir in walnuts, raisins and dates. Add flour and baking powder. Bake in a shallow pan for thirty minutes in a moderate oven. Remove from oven and cut into bars; ice with chocolate icing and decorate with nuts and raisins.

Persimmon Cake—One cup sugar, one egg, one cup flour, one teaspoon baking powder, one-half teaspoon soda, butter size of walnut. Bake thirty minutes in moderate oven. For a soft pudding leave out egg. For a custard leave out flour and baking powder.

MENUS FOR THANKSGIVING.

BREAKFAST.
Baked Sweet Potatoes and Tiny Pork Sausages

DOMESTIC SCIENCE

IN COUNTRY SCHOOLS

Instructions to be Given Each Friday—Expert at Training School in Conference Saturday.

Miss Katherine M. Staley of Garrison, North Dakota, who is to give domestic science instruction at the training school here during the second quarter of the school year, presided Saturday morning at the first of a series of conferences at the school. Miss Staley talked on "A Balanced Meal" and explained fully the nature of her work in the country schools as it is to be carried out on each Friday in the different schools of the county. She gave the teachers present an object or illustrative lesson in preparing the dinner for the day.

During the afternoon there was a short discussion of the country school program. Supt. Antisdal having charge. The training school graduated on last June were scheduled to hold a conference Saturday afternoon to decide on the picture they planned to purchase for the school.

CO-ED PARTY GIVEN FOR BOYS' CABINET

High School Girls Entertained at Y. M. C. A. Building on Friday Evening Last.

A very unique and enjoyable entertainment was given at the Y. M. C. A. building on Friday evening. It was given by the ladies' auxiliary to the boys' cabinet and their young lady friends and was something of an experiment as nothing for both boys and girls had been attempted at the building before. But the ladies reasoned that no better place could be found for the entertaining of the young people together. So fifteen couples took advantage of the invitations and together with the chapter of the Y. M. C. A. participated in a horrible party. The boys' rooms had been arranged in the boys' colors, purple and white.

The circular bay windows had been accented with a white lattice work, entwined with purple chrysanthemums. Various original games, including a peanut hunt, a spider-web, where very remarkable favors were given and a shock of corn, and a horrible parade were participated in by the young people. Later a fortune tellers' booth was a source of great fun and mystification, the prophecies appearing in blank paper when held over a candle.

Hot chocolate, individual pumpkin pies, ginger snaps and popcorn balls of purple and white formed the delightful refreshments. A committee of five or six ladies planned and carried out the affair, with Mrs. F. G. Wolcott as chairman.

It would be very desirable for occasions of a social nature if there was some kind of a music instrument in the room that could be used. The boys could have a good "sing" once in awhile and musical numbers could be given on their programs. If any one has a good organ they would like to donate to the boys' room, the use would be much appreciated by them for the present. Perhaps later there may be some way found to purchase a piano.

HE COULDN'T BE WRONG. We heard a man say an unusually mean thing about his wife the other day. "How could he say that?" we wondered after he had gone. "How could he help it?" said the Authorman.

"Help it?" we echoed indignantly. "Why it was a horrid thing to say. Why shouldn't he help it?" "He couldn't," persisted the Authorman. "That is, not if he stuck to the main article of his creed."

"What is that?" "Put Him in a Hard Place. That he can never be wrong. He was in a hard place; he had been practically proved wrong, the only way he could justify himself was to put the blame on his wife. It was a yellow thing to do, but he had to do it. Poor man, I'm rather sorry for him on the whole."

"Sorry for him?" sniffed the Authorman's wife. "I shouldn't think you'd be, after the way he spoke. I think it rather reflects on you."

The Authorman shrugged his shoulders helplessly. Is there any feeling with a person who is constitutionally incapable of getting one's point of view?

Personally I like the Authorman's analysis of the case, don't you? After all, could anyone be in a more difficult position than the man who cannot be wrong?

The Simplest Way Out of a Mistake.

The very best of us make mistakes now and then. Other people discover er these mistakes and bring them home to us. To admit that one has been wrong is the simplest way out. No one can continue to blame you for a fault when you frankly acknowledge it and avow your intention of overcoming it.

But the man who cannot be wrong cannot thus abandon an untenable position. He must continue to hold it no matter what the odds against him. And to do this he is often forced to abandon fair means and take to foul.

He has to say mean things and show a yellow streak. He has to let all the avails of sarcasm and unjustified ridicule.

It Must Be Terrible to Have to Live Such Weapons.

Why shouldn't anyone who couldn't bear to touch such weapons with his finger tips pity the man whose character forces him to employ them?

Besides, there is another penalty for never being wrong. If you are never willing to blame yourself for anything, you must consider yourself blameless. If you consider yourself blameless, that means that you feel you are perfect. If you think you are perfect, you see no need for growth and development and you will permit yourself to stand still.

And as the most real happiness and satisfaction of life is in growth, climbing up and on to new Kingdoms of Heaven, why shouldn't we pity the man to whom this part of life is closed?

Why, indeed?

HOW TO JUDGE A DOCTOR.

Because he drives your style of car or attends your church, or joins your order or tries his whiskers in a manner pleasing to your taste, is a mighty poor reason for employing a physician. Yet it is a potent factor in his selection in many instances.

A good doctor is one who never gets through learning. He reads; he studies; he is active in medical society sessions; books are much in evidence and medical journals find a place in his office.

Not sumptuousness but neatness characterizes the furnishing of his place of business. Not foppery but conservatism marks his dress. He is clean, even if he is poor. For he knows that the best doctors are not the biggest money-makers.

Still, the modest physician worthy of his hire; if he fails to collect his fee in a business like way he is bound to get behind the times presently, for want of the wherewithal to buy books, medical journals and post-graduate courses.

But when you visit the doctor all of a sudden for the first time you know of these details. You have to observe him in action. There are certain marks by which you may determine his relative ability.

A good doctor isn't afraid to examine you—insists upon examining you. He doesn't let you think he is the trouble or what some one else has told you. Not only that, but he examines you as though he suspected you were trying to conceal something from him. And he is often are, though all unconsciously.

Having completed his examination he prescribes what he thinks will be good for you. If it is medicine, he prescribes it himself, especially to fit your needs. No ready-made cure-all will quite satisfy him. He does not practice according to the directions of the proprietary medicine maker.

He knows enough to formulate his own prescriptions for each individual patient. His armamentarium is something wider than an assortment of pink, purple and yellow shot-gun tablets.

He may hold out hopes and assurances, but he never guarantees a cure.

His professional colleagues respect him. His patients are not so very numerous, but they stick.

Heart and Home Problems

Letters May Be Addressed to Mrs. Thompson, in Care of The Gazette

Dear Mrs. Thompson: (1) I have been married five years. My husband has three sisters who live in a distant state. In all this time they have not written me one word personally. I have never met them. Ought I to expect them to write? My husband and I think not.

(2) He has two brothers married recently who also live in a distant state. I wrote letters to their wives and said they would be glad to hear from them. Did I do right or not?

(3) Your husband's sisters ought to write and welcome you to their family. But you ought not to feel hurt because they don't, perhaps they don't know they should.

(4) Yes, you did do right.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I am twenty years old and have a friend twenty-nine who is very much in love with me. I love him very much, too. If he should ask me to marry him, what would you advise me to do?

If you are in doubt about marrying a man don't do it. Your inclination to marry him should be strong enough to blot out all fear of doing so.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: (1) I am a girl of fourteen. My girl chum and I have been sincere friends. A few nights ago this girl's father came home intoxicated and her mother is accustomed to be in bad company. Yet this girl is a very nice girl and I hate to break our love and friendship. I hate to see her in such a bad house and I also visit her. What would you advise me to do?

(2) Is a girl of sixteen too young to keep steady company?

Faithful Friend.

(1) Be true to your chum, just as long as she is worthy of your friendship.

CHILDREN'S COLDS SHOULD BE WATCHED

Danger From Infection of Sore Throat or Cold Among Small Children.

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.)

Madison, Wis., Nov. 22.—"Just a little sore throat," left to run its course by indifferent parents, is a condition in school children, is a condition for thousands of unnecessary deaths. Vigorous measures at the first sign of a sore throat to check disease in its infancy are being urged by the state board of health, which is receiving an increasing number of reports of contagious disease among children.

"A common 'cold' or a little sore throat in young children should be viewed seriously," says the board in an official bulletin. "The first symptoms of measles and whooping cough resemble a cold in the head. Undue exposure at this time is dangerous. In the beginning of diphtheria and scarlet fever the common symptoms is often 'just a little sore throat.'

"If your child has a cold or sore throat do not send him to school that day or until the condition is cured. This is the time he needs the care of the home and home protection. You are also preventing the exposure of other children to the cold or sore throat of your child. While regular attendance at school is commendable under all reasonable conditions, yet the presence of a sick child in a school room is neither commendable nor just to himself or other individuals with whom he may come in contact a few days in the home, with proper nursing, under these conditions, will save many regrets. If marked improvement in a child is not shown quickly, a family physician should be consulted to determine accurately the character of the illness."

HAUGHTON'S MACHINE TRAMPLES OVER YALE

MAHAN, RUNS WILD IN YALE GAME AND CRIMSON WINS BY SCORE OF 41 TO 0.

GAMES END SATURDAY

Conference Race Ends in a Tie for Championship Between Minnesota and Illinois Eleventh.

By Strikes.

The curtain for the football season of 1915 went down Saturday amid a blaze of glory, for never before has there been so many upsets in the collegiate world as has been experienced this season. If one were to study and compare scores, it would be a hopeless task for any predictions or indications of team strength.

As anticipated, Harvard walked all over Yale. Few thought, or dared to think, that Harvard would give Yale such a terrific trouncing as 41 to 0 after Yale came to life and beat Princeton. But Tom Shewlin's coaching and psychological punch, which made Yale players fighters, lacked speed enough to even tap Harvard. Coach Percy Haughton had drilled football into the Crimson which pushed Yale all over the gridiron, rolling over six touchdowns. The Harvard team is composed of Mahan and company.

Haughton has the happy gift of producing one really great player for his team. This player is always head and shoulders above all others. Once it was Wendell, then Brickley, and now Mahan. Mahan's football career with a wonderful display of football ability, for he made four touchdowns and kicked five goals for a total of 29 points. Assisted by a perfect defense, Mahan romped through and around the Yale line without much of a hamper.

Yale made a desperate but unavailing stand against the Crimson steamroller. She was drilled only in the rudiments of football and filled with fight. It would take more than fight to beat Haughton, and consequently Yale suffered her worst defeat in history.

In the west the conference football season ended in a tie with the championship honors divided between Minnesota and Illinois, with odds favoring no team. Illinois by a terrific burst of speed the first quarter rushed the Chicago Maroons off their feet, scoring ten points before Stagg marshaled force enough into his team to stop the Illinois backs. Chicago played a defensive game and held after the disastrous opening period. Minnesota crushed the Badgers 20 to 3. Minnesota fans claim an edge on the title for the reason they walloped Chicago 20 to 7, as compared to Illinois 10 to 0.

Comparative scores are valueless in title claims when it is considered that the conference leaders played a 6 to 6 tie. Wisconsin holds the place, which is a sad disappointment to the students.

Ohio State is entitled to fourth place, as Saturday they administered beating to North Western by the tune of 34 to 0, and have a tie game to their credit with Illinois. Purdue comes fifth, as they beat Indiana 7 to 0 in a closely fought game. Nebraska had no trouble in beating Iowa, and it is to be regretted that the Nebraska huskies cannot clash with the stronger conference elevens. The Oregon Aggies, who gave the middle west and east a fighting spell by trouncing the Michigan Aggies, were beaten by Oregon 9 to 0, and evidently they play a real brand of football out on the Pacific coast.

Outside of the Harvard-Yale score, there was little doing in the east. The scores were as expected. The Army beat Springfield 17 to 7. Dartmouth and Syracuse, two of the strongest elevens, battled to a scoreless tie.

In the state, St. John's had their championship claims rudely shaken by Shattuck, at Fairbault, Minnesota. The cadets losing 15 to 7. Carroll beat Lake Forest 15 to 7. Carroll beat Lake Forest in the victory, Edward Atwood playing end, Moore tackle and Allen Dearborn fullback. In Milwaukee the cadets losing 15 to 7. Carroll beat Lake Forest 15 to 7. Outside of a few games that are to be played Thanksgiving, the gridiron schedule is closed for another year. It is to be hoped that the 1916 season will be as interesting as the one just over.

MANY JANESVILLE PEOPLE SEE MINN. DEFEAT WISCONSIN

Gophers With Unstoppable Shift Plays Beat Fighting Badgers 20 to 3 in Game of Thrills.

About five hundred from Rock county on Saturday witnessed the combat between the machine play of the Minnesota Gophers and the rugged, yet fightful playing of the Wisconsin Badgers and saw the steam roller shift plays, made famous by Coach Williams, slowly but surely crumple the Wisconsin defense until the home states were submerged under a score of 20 to 3. Wisconsin after the first quarter, never had a show to win the game, losing strength and defensive power on every play, lacking punch when fortune changed and gave them an opportunity of testing strength in the Minnesota territory.

Minnesota is a marvel as a football team. They know football backwards, forwards, sideways and also in and out and were always on the job. Almost every play that the Gophers started went forward from the shift position and with perfect interference they bowled over Wisconsin's defense, knocking aside the line and plunging through the second line of defense for gains. Bierman, left half for the Gophers, was unstoppable. When he could not go through he went around and when he could not go around he went through. He was a dynamo on legs, a twisting, squirming, fighting piece of machinery that only knew one way to go and that was ahead. The best run of the day was made by this back when he twisted through the Badger line for thirty yards in mid-air and was on his way to the distant and corner when downed because of a slip on the hazardous turf. Long was also able to pierce the Wisconsin line for short gains and their quarter-through plays from the shift plays were puzzles to the Badgers.

Modern football rules have eliminated mass plays. Minnesota's shifts come the closest to mass plays of anything possible. On every play there are at least four men around the runner, protecting him, and those Gopher men certainly knew how to block and box-in the ends and tackle to make a machine for it has football brains. The strongest part of the Gophers is their impregnable line from end to end. When in danger they not only held Wisconsin, but shoved her back and the line shifted through the Wisconsin forward with ease and grace, that made the losers appear weak, more so than they really were. Wisconsin in the first quarter showed their hopeful supporters a new lease of life. After the kick-off they pulled together and went over that field like winners. Simpson and Smith, by crooked running, went tearing down the field for gain after gain. Then they started the punting game. The dope went right for Minnesota fumbled a long spiral and Wisconsin made its first down on the twenty yard line. They tried to buck the Gopher line but they might as well have tried to push over the new castle. It could not "be did." Simpson put over a short place kick for the first blood. Wisconsin's jubilation over the three points given through the first quarter but suffered during the remaining part of the game.

In the second period, after the bleachers collapsed, the Gophers rolled up their high speed, powerful shift plays and proceeded to annihilate Wisconsin's line. Captain Buck, playing defensive back, stopped many of the plays, but Bierman gained enough to make up for the losses. From the thirty yard line the Gophers bucked to Wisconsin's five yard line. The Badgers took a brace and held for downs under the threshold of the goal. Then Simpson making the weakest, flukiest attempt at punting possible from behind his goal. The ball did not travel four yards from behind the goal and it was the Gophers' ball, first down, on the five yard line. The Gophers wigged through the mass of twisted humanity in a line buck for the first touchdown. In the third quarter the Badgers weakened. Their line faltered while that of Minnesota was a barricade. The Badgers started forward passing and it was costly for the Gophers were able to intercept the throws and then Wisconsin had a job on her hands to check the Gopher play. The second score was partially a gift from the referee. Stavrum roughed a Gopher back coming around his end and the referee called the play. Three tries and it was over. The third and last goal came soon after and was the result of Bierman's long, snaky run. The best play of the game was the ninety yard dash by Simpson, after the kick-off, for he came within inches of scoring a touchdown. The headiest play of the Gopher-Badger struggle was the Wisconsin strategy of repeating the real runs of Steffen and Capron, on Camp Randall. Simpson took the ball out of the hands of Stavrum at the kick-off and raced down the side line. Half a dozen of the Gophers missed him in the first thirty yards and the other half stood watching him go. One brown-sweatered player saw the danger, cut across the field to stop the fleeing Simpson. At the ten yard line Simpson was free, but for this one player. The Gopher man did not attempt to tackle Simpson but ran ahead of him, so as to force Simpson to make a foot out of bounds. It was Wisconsin's bull on the five yard line but they lacked the punch to move it an inch. Once the Gophers had it, they marched down the field with ease and grace and the game ended with them threatening another score.

Meyers, the curly headed right end for the Badgers, with Captain Buck were the defensive stars of the game. Meyers played basketball against the Janesville Cardinals with the University Reserves last year in three games. Wisconsin, it can be safely said, did not show good coaching. Her plays were limited and they kept trying the same brand of smashes and formations over and over again until the Minnesota attack was spilling the backfield men before they got started on the run. Meyers did not make a good gain all during the game.

Over Mile Ahead of World Record.—Eight Teams Are Tied for Lead in Event at Chicago.

(By Associated Press.)

Chicago, Nov. 22.—A mile and two laps ahead of the world's record, eight teams were tied for leadership in the six-day bicycle race at the conclusion of the 57th hour of the grind today. They had ridden 1,174 miles.

Iver Lawson of Chicago, and Eddie Root of Boston, team mates, were a lap behind the leaders. The veteran six-day riders fell behind after a series of sensational spurts last night in which world's records began to fall. The riders at one time were five miles ahead of the world's mark.

Thomas Grinn of Newark, N. J., one of the four riders, who quit the race, is suffering from an acute attack of appendicitis and will be obliged to undergo an operation.

MORRIS MILLER

If Cornell comes through and downs Penn on Thanksgiving day, which is almost certain to happen, Capt. Charles Barrett and his libation will be recognized as the football champions of the east, despite the perfect record of the University of Pittsburgh, the only other unbeaten big eleven. Cornell, because of its victory over Harvard, and the all-around class of the teams it has defeated, has the call over Pitt. Barrett's team has defeated in addition to Harvard, Gettysburg, Quinn, Williams, Bucknell, Virginia, T. Michigan, Washington and Lee. Pitt's victims have been Westminster, Navy, Indiana, Penn. Allegheny, Washington and Jefferson and Carnegie Tech. Cornell has outscored Pitt, 253-127.

To the University of Virginia belongs the championship of the south. The title was clinched last week when Vanderbilt, downed Auburn, 17-0, and Georgia and Georgia Tech, 21-0, to a scoreless tie. Virginia had previously beaten Vandy, 35-10. Virginia also trimmed Yale, 10-0, and held Harvard, 9-0.

The football season is over at Michigan. During the year Yost's men rolled up only 100 points. There have been only four Yost teams which have scored less than 100 points. The 1915 team was its defense. Just 81 points were rung up against the Wolverines. That just ties the record the 1908 team made. Since Yost has been at the helm, fifteen seasons, Michigan has won 103 games and lost 16. Eight games resulted in tie scores. Michigan has scored 4,000 points against 475 for the opposition. Not so bad after all.

The latest spotlight performer in football is Elcock, former Dartmouth player, who assisted Coach Cavanaugh a few years ago. Elcock is responsible for one showing of the Washington and Lee elevens, which scored twenty-one points on Cornell. W. and L. had not been beaten or scored on up to Saturday. Officials declare W. and L. has one of the best teams in the country.

George "Kid" Lavigne, former lightweight champion, is down and out. A benefit will be given for him in New York in December. Lavigne, one of the greatest little scrappers the ring ever produced, was champion in the days of real fighters. Lavigne did not land to land and turn it into a meal ticket by picking up easy money against second and third rangers, but defended it against all comers.

Charles Brickley is as good a coach as he was player at Harvard, according to Baltimore sport writers who watched him handle the Johns Hopkins university eleven. It is said Brickley has been a life-saver to Johns Hopkins in football. This is Brickley's first year as coach. He lost Johns Hopkins a lot of money, but is said to have made good for the school financially and otherwise.

An eight-round scrap between Joe Cox the "Missouri mountain," and Fred Fulton, the Rochester giant, both of them one time conquerors of Jess Willard, is the dish promoter are trying to cook up for St. Louis fight fans. Sport Sullivan, manager of Cox, is negotiating with Fulton. Fulton knocked out Willard in an exhibition last May, and Cox made the champion jump out of the ring several years ago. Cox canceled a lot of popularity in St. Louis a week ago when he waddled eight easy rounds with Gunboat Smith, losing the decision.

The Reds' newest outfielder already is handicapped by a hard and vexatious nickname. Throughout the Central league circuit he is known as "Greasy" Neale—reason whereof unclear. Outside said Central league in stealing bases and catching into the plate that it doth seem even as though he were greased; perchance Mr. Neale, when dealing with umpire or

CONSUMPTION CURES LABELED AS FAKES

State Health Officers Declare Fresh Air and Sunshine Treatment Only Cure For Disease.

(Special to The Gazette.)

Madison, Wis., Nov. 22.—Denying belief absolutely in any of the so-called consumption "cures," state health officials this week strongly endorsed the work of the Wisconsin Anti-Tuberculosis association, in an annual session at Milwaukee, and reiterated that fresh air and sunshine, good food, and plenty of sleep are the only cure yet discovered for tuberculosis.

Inquiry was made of the state board of health this week by a Menasha man regarding the claims of a widely advertised "cure" for consumption. The advertisement included a testimonial inferring miraculous recovery after taking three bottles, at $4.50 per bottle. Investigation by the board brought forth a pamphlet exposing the "cure" as one of many consumption cure fakes preying on the fears and pocket-books of easy victims. The advertisement of this concoction is now running in a number of Wisconsin newspapers.

The board has received the text of the decision of the United States district court for the eastern district of Pennsylvania, upholding an amendment to the federal food and drug act, making it unlawful to print on the package or label of any drug false and fraudulent statements regarding its curative or therapeutic effects. The court held that it is not necessary to show that the statement regarding the drug is flatly and boldly false. It is enough to prove that the advertisement is such as to create or lead to a false impression in the reader's mind as to the ingredients or composition of the drug.

This decision sustains views long held by Wisconsin health officials regarding many "cure-alls" which still have a wide vogue despite a nation wide expose.
